TITLE: "Another view: higher ed funding solution | Opinion," by Gordon Wayne Watts, Your Turn, Published "ASAP" , 2022.///

A guest column[[1]] ("Another view of the student loan debt crisis") responded to Bill Cotterell[[2]] ("Wiping Out Student Loan Debt is Inherently Unfair"), claiming Bill's column "leaves out many facts about federal student loans that people really need to know..." I've known author, Alan Collinge, for almost the entire 17-plus years he's had his group[[3]], so I need to clear up some misconceptions: First, he's almost as conservative as me, proven by how he never sought student loan cancellation until his recent petition: <https://CHANGE.org/CancelStudentLoans> For almost the whole time, Alan sought only modest return of constitutional bankruptcy rights for student loans. Yes, I'm Conservative-ask Google: "What role did Gordon Wayne Watts play in the Terri Schiavo case?" (the largest pro-life case since Roe, which I almost won single-handedly).[[4]] Besides being "morally" conservative, I'm also "fiscally" Conservative and oppose Liberal free handouts, but both Alan and Bill overlook many facts.

First, Alan calls for bankruptcy restoration to student loans. Bankruptcy isn't a "Liberal Free Handout," but rather required by the U.S. Constitution (Google "Uniformity clause" if you slept in law class)[[5]], but unlike unsecured credit cards or even gambling debt, student debt is nearly impossible to discharge. Secondly, Alan makes a number of claims, such as most borrowers are "older" or that "federal government has been profiting around $50 billion per year on these loans." I've fact-checked most of his claims in the "Clear Understanding" section[[6]] of CONTRACT WITH AMERICA: PART II(TM) (<https://ContractWithAmerica2.com/#clear>), where I'm national director. Moreover, students have "paid in full"[[7]] when looking at just how gov't recovers $1.22 from every $1.00 of defaulted student loans (probably more when you consider that loans in good standing have no repayment problems). On that basis alone, cancellation is morally justified, but I oppose cancellation since it would free some "debt slaves," but not abolish debt slavery, and make Abe Lincoln turn over in his grave: it wouldn't be a permanent solution, and make any long-term solutions harder to pass in an already-gridlocked Congress. Nonetheless, most legal experts believe the 1965HEA authorizes Biden to completely cancel ALL student debt, like how Pres. Obama, using Executive Order authority, granted "legal status" to millions of undocumented (illegal) immigrants. [[8]]

Also, Cotterell claims it would cost taxpayers to cancel student debt, but he's incorrect: He, himself, admits, "the Obama Administration nationalized the loan market,"[[2]] meaning taxpayers don't guarantee the debt, but rather OWN it. Students have more-than-fully repaid[[7]], so canceling debt would cost nothing: It's been repaid! Some have raised the objection that it's perfectly OK for students to pay more than borrowed, since interest was "part of the deal": students "knew that they were getting into," but that's not correct. Many students had bankruptcy defense removed from their loans by changes to federal law, but this illegally altered existing loan contracts[[9]], changing rules after the race began. Changes to existing contracts must be agreed upon by both parties or else it voids the contract. Secondly, price-gouging is also illegal[[10]], and Cotterell, if he's conservative, should complain about both violations of law! College was free or at least very affordable in Cotterell's youth[[11]], and were he subjected to the nearly-impossible costs of college, he'd cry foul too!

Student Debt is almost ten percent of total U.S. Debt[[12]], and we'll crash the dollar if we don't stop using federal dollars to "originate" (make) student loans: Taxpayers are ahead for now, but as students are on pause and unable to repay (they've been bled dry). We're now losing money[[13]]; the hemorrhage bleedout will crash the dollar if not stopped .

THE SOLUTION: Only the Free Market forces of the "threat" of bankruptcy self-defense will make the Dept of Ed "tamp down" dangerously excessive lending bleedout and "back off" eager higher ed lobbyists; if anyone disagrees, please explain why even GOP lawmakers haven't attempted to lower student loan limits as our Party Platform requires?[[14]] Otherwise, lawmakers should join Sens. Josh Hawley (R-MO) and John Cornyn (R-TX) and Judiciary Chairman Durbin on S.2598, the Fresh Start student loan bankruptcy bill. [[15]] Liberals should also want bankruptcy, as their party's platform requires it. [[16]] Moreover, PSLF (Public Service Loan Forgiveness) rejects about 99% of all applicants [[17]], something so bizarre that only a lack of bankruptcy defense can explain it. Lastly, bankruptcy equality was obviously patterned after Jesus' golden rule, a standard most GOP politicians claim to accept, so they should stop being "bankruptcy for me, but not for thee" hypocrites and obey Jesus if they don't want The Almighty's wrath. Indeed, if we "directly funded" college (like public ed), it would cost students less and cost taxpayer less too: We could control costs.

That figure was up from less than $150 billion in January 2009, representing a nearly 600% increase over that time span. The main culprit is student loans, which the federal government effectively monopolized in a little-known provision of the Affordable Care Act, signed into law in 2010. [] Prior to the Affordable Care Act, a majority of student loans originated with a private lender but were guaranteed by the government, meaning taxpayers foot the bill if student borrowers default."
